

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT COLLABORATIVE

THE CENTER FOR DESIGN THINKING BETTER TOGETHER SERIES

The Importance & Value in Bringing Us Together

Tuesday, June 29 3:30-5:00

How might you tap into and leverage your values in order to better support your organization?

In this Better Together session, participants will explore how they can leverage their values into guiding principles. Values are the nonnegotiable characteristics that best describe who we are and why we exist. Guiding principles are applied values that govern action and define how we show up in our engagement with one another. As the foundational beliefs that anchor families, friends, companies and nonprofit organizations, these concepts are at the heart of The Social Good Report, a recent publication by session presenter Josh Jacobson.

Jacobson is CEO of Next Stage, a social good consulting firm serving the Carolinas. Josh has explored how values and guiding principles have become a big part of how society functions, including how next generation audiences engage in the world. This session will unpack some of his research and engage participants in an exploration of their own value systems to tap in to the commonalities that bind us.

josh@nextstage-consulting.com

SIGN UP HERE TODAY!

Who Is This For? YOU! Community members, local agencies, businesses, nonprofit organizations, government, faculty, staff, and students

Organized By

Haya Ajjan, Reagan Chandler (Chamber of Commerce, Tammy Cobb (Kernodle, Elon), Marcy Green (Impact Alamance), Sara Beth Hardy (Burlington Downtown Corporation), Danielle Lake (Director of Design Thinking & Assoc. Prof., Elon), Heidi Norwick (United Way of Alamance)